WE WILL HAVE THE BIG GAME IN 1921

(By Associated Press)
Austin, Texas, Nov. 10.—Football for next season will present a very interesting schedule for the University of Texas, according to the statement made by T. L. Belmont, athletic director. Special effort was made to secure teams of recognized standing for competition next fall. The Longhorns are snowing under all opposition so far this season, and it is expected that the team will be back almost intact next year. The schedule includes some of the largest schools in the South.

Of especial interest is the game with Vanderbilt at Dallas on Oct. 22. Until this season the Longhorns met the Oklahoma Sooners at the Dallas Fair for a hard scrap. Since the Sooners joined the Missouri Valley Conference, however, they were unable to play the annual game, and provision was made by Mr. Belmont for the Vanderbilt team. One of the largest guarantees ever given by the University was made to Vanderbilt to secure this game.

Another promising new team on the schedule is that of Mississippi A. & M., to play in Austin on Nov. 12. This team has been making an enviable record for itself, and is expected to cause a hard fight on the home pastures of the Longhorns. The contract for this game has not yet been returned, but it has been agreed to, and is only awaiting signature.

All the other games on the schedule are with familiar teams. Beginning early in the season with Simmons College, the team will rub off its rough edges on Austin College and Howard Payne, and then proceed to the Vanderbilt game. The game with Rice Institute, to be held in Austin this year, will follow the Vanderbilt game. Then comes Southwestern in Austin, Nov. 12. Miss. A. & M. at Austin; Nov. 26. Texas A. & M. at College Station.

Oct. 1, Simmons College at Austin; Oct. 7, Austin College at Austin; Oct. 15, Howard Payne at Austin; Oct. 22, Vanderbilt at Dallas; Oct. 29, Rice Institute at Austin; November 5, Southwestern at Austin; Nov. 12, Miss. A. & M. at Austin; Nov. 26, Texas A. & M. at College Station.

MEXICAN GENERAL SEEMS VERY BUSY

(By Associated Press)
Mexico City, Nov. 9.—A statement was issued at General Obregon's headquarters last night and it was said to be impossible for General Obregon to meet Senator Harding at the border city even should arrangements for such conference be completed.

The short time intervening before General Obregon's inauguration and the necessity of preparing the legislative program, was given as reasons for abandoning all thought of meeting American president-elect Harding. The general asserted he realized the benefits to be derived from such a meeting and personally desired it.

SAME OLD STORY WOMAN TAKES LIFE

(By Associated Press)
Chicago, Nov. 10.—Miss T. Saunders, 25 years old, of Laredo, Texas, committed suicide on the mezzanine floor of a downtown hotel here Tuesday by plunging a dagger into her heart. She died as she was being carried to her room. Henry Garver of this city was arrested by the police in connection with the suicide. Garver and Miss Saunders were talking together just before the tragedy. Suddenly Miss Saunders drew a dagger from her sleeve and plunged it into her breast. Garver stopped a passing bellboy and told him to call a doctor as "a woman had fainted."

Garver was questioned by detectives of the homicide squad. Garver is interstate and foreign trade commissioner for the Chicago Association of Commerce. He has been with the association about 12 years. According to his secretary, Garver met Miss Saunders on a recent trip to Texas with members of the association. The story of a hopeless infatuation and ace of spades, Gypsy death card and pearl handled dagger, which led to the death yesterday of Miss Theodore Saunders, Laredo, Texas, was unfolded before the coronor's jury this morning. Miss Saunders plunged the dagger into her heart while talking to her former fiancée, Harry Garver in the lounge of a downtown hotel. Garver was summoned to tell his story of a tempestuous romance. He met Miss Saunders on a southern trip as interstate foreign commissioner of Chicago Association of Commerce. Passionate love letters and telegrams found in her hand bag when she died told Garver repeated promises to marry her soon as he could get a divorce from his present wife who is now with his parents at Grant City, Missouri. Later letters seemed to reveal the diminished ardor. Garver told the police yesterday.

RAILROADS ARE ASKING MORE MONEY

(By Associated Press)
Austin, Nov. 9.—The hearing of the railroad's application for an increase of interstate freight rates to correspond with the increase of 35 per cent interstate freight rates was resumed before an examiner of the interstate commerce commission. The hearing began at Galveston several weeks ago and was an appeal from the decision of the Texas Railroad Commission which allowed an increase of 33 1-3 per cent on interstate freight rates.

(By Associated Press)
Washington, Nov. 10.—Secretary Colby announced definitely today he would visit Rio Janiero, Montevideo, and Buenos Aires on his forth coming trip to South America with stops at Brazilian and Uruguayan ports and in tends to return the recent visits to the United States of presidents of those countries. FORTY EIGHT PERISH- ED IN TYPHOON

(By Associated Press)
Manilla, P. I., Nov. 10.—Believed forty eight persons perished when coastwise steamer, San Benito struck a typhoon last Wednesday en route to Puerto Bello, Leyte Island, south of Philippines, according to survivors reaching here today. Fifteen survivors reached Cebu. There were sixty-four persons aboard vessel.

The friends of John Daly, Jr., are mentioning him in connection with the appointment of postmaster in Bryan under President Harding.

GREATEST DEMAND EVER KNOWN FOR FOOT BALL SEATS

(By Associated Press)
Austin, Texas, Nov. 9.—Never before in the history of Texas football has there been such a gigantic demand for tickets as there is for the Texas and A. M. game to be played in Austin on Thanksgiving day. The crowd which witnessed the game between the Longhorns and the Farmers in Austin in 1916 numbered 13,000 persons and was the largest Texas crowd up to that time. The number of spectators at that game, however, will not compare with that which will attend this year's contest.

Every effort is being made by L. Theo. Belmont, Director of Athletics of the University, to meet the demand for seats. The original seating plans were made with a view of accommodating 15,000 spectators and extra stands are now being erected at every corner of the field. All the seats on both sides of the field have been sold, and only the 52 seats in the end sections are now available. The north half of the field was given to A. & M., the south half to Texas. The University reserved the covered grandstand for out of town alumni, and these seats were quickly taken. The half of the bleachers allotted to Texas was reserved for the faculty and the Texas routers.

This game is showing just how badly the University of Texas needs a good athletic field with a permanent stadium. The permanent stands at Clark Field seat only 8,000 persons, and the athletic authorities of the university face the task of doubling this seating capacity for the big games played here. The temporary stands being erected will involve an expense of approximately $8,000, and they will be torn down immediately after the game.

"The expense and trouble of erecting these stands to satisfy the people of the State who wish to attend the big games played by the University must be borne year after year, and this useless waste will continue until the appropriation for the proper sort of athletic equipment is secured. The situation is due to a false conception of economy," said Mr. Belmont.

DISASTER FACES FARMERS OF NATION

(By Associated Press)
Boston, Nov. 10.—Sherman Lowell, of Fredonia New York, Master of the National Grange and Patrons of Husbandry, predicted the establishment of nation wide selling organization which would fix the price of farm products. If the farmer fails to receive the same pay for the same hours of work other receive, Lowell rejoiced that labor was able to secure a much higher rate of wage but added, "We little expected it to turn a demand of cheaper food from us without first ascertaining the costs of production for farmers. The farmer cannot at present pay the high prices of production."

The twelve men on the squad at present have been ranked by D. A. Penick, coach. According to plans formed at the meeting a tournament will be held, beginning immediately, and any man on the squad will have the privilege of challenging any man above him, while any student of the University may challenge any member of the squad for his position. This plan is adopted to afford training for members of the squad and give opportunity to other tennis players of the University.

Besides the regular tournament held annually to decide the championship of the Southwest Conference, Coach Penick hopes to arrange several other meets for the team. Efforts are now being made to schedule a dual meet with A. & M.

A joint conference of the City Development Committee of the Bryan and Brazos County Chamber of Commerce, and the Cemetery Advisory Committee of the City Commission, held a meeting Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the director's room of the First National Bank. This meeting was for the purpose of discussing plans for the organization of a Cemetery Association; it was the opinion of all present that such an association was badly needed, so that there might be an organized body to look after raising funds and giving direct attention to the cemetery; after going into all matters pertaining to the good of such an association, it was decided to call a mass meeting of the citizens at the Carnegie Library on Thursday, November 18th, at 3:30 o'clock. The next big game of interest in high school circles will be the game next Thursday (Armistice Day) at Kyle field, College, between Bryan High School and Houston High School. This game will have great bearing upon the state championship and will undoubtedly decide champions of South Texas. Neither team has been scored upon or beaten.

SENATOR HARDING IS NOW TARPON FISHING

(By Associated Press)
Point Isabel, Nov. 10.—Senator Harding deserted golf for tarpon fishing again today, cancelling tentative appointment at the Brownsville country club to remain on the water all day trying his luck with rod and reel. Yesterday's try at Tarpon Angling made him a staunch devotee of the sport. Friends predicted that during the remainder of his vacation he would give very little time to any other form of recreation. Tomorrow Senator Harding is to speak at Brownsville at the Armistice Day celebration and may go in to the city early to try out the country club golf links first.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL IS PLANNED

Mrs. Frank L. Webb, chapter chairman of the fourth Red Cross Roll Call, is making her plans for an intensive campaign for membership and subscriptions for the Red Cross from November 11th to 25th, inclusive. Mrs. Webb will announce the Bryan committees soon and is counting on the cooperation of those she asks to serve, and believes she will receive a hearty response. It is gratifying to know that the people from every part of the county are calling at the Red Cross office to renew their membership, without being solicited, and to make donations to the Red Cross for its future work. The Red Cross has done nothing spectacular since the war, but has gone on with its job steadily and faithfully, its influence being felt in many, many homes of sickness and sorrow, and the tangled affairs of hundreds of sailors and soldiers have been unraveled and their peace of mind and home restored. Having projected its Home Service work to the civilian population as well as to the ex-service men and their families, the Red Cross has proven itself an organization of comfort and mercy, here at home, as will be attested by many people of our own county and town.

Brazos county needs her Red Cross, and the Red Cross needs members and donations to continue the work now so well established. Let every man, woman and child respond to this annual call for membership and funds. The following sub-committee chairmen in the county have been appointed for the Red Cross Roll Call: College, Major Ike Ashburn; Millican, Prof. A. B. Ford; Wellborn, Mrs. George F. Lee; Reliance, Miss Essie Shealey; Tabor, Miss Mary Benbow; Steep Hollow, Mrs. Elbert Moore; Harvey, Mrs. J. C. Davidson; Smetana, Mrs. John Habarta; Steele Store and Stone City, Charley DeLegio; Kurten, Hamp Buchanan; Edge, Mrs. Mae Steverner Wilson; Macy, Miss Vida Nash; Wheelock, Lee W. Lys; Bohemians of the county, George Nedbalek; Italians of the county, George Patronella; colored people of the county, Ada Brown.

BRYAN HAS ARTIST IN CLAY FOOTBALL MODELING

A window display in the Parker-Astin Hardware Co., that is attracting much attention and deservedly so, both for its merits and the interest for the Bryan High school football team should be seen by every citizen. The window is a replica of a football gridiron and in clay figures is told the story of the Bryan Hi football team in action. The arrangement of the window was made by L. B. Madrox and the figures were modeled by Jesse McGee. The figures in the rough, modeled from common clay, show marked natural talent of a skilled workman and the motion, action and movement revealed is worthy of recognition of a trained artist. This art is a natural gift of Mr. McGee's he never having had any training, but brought under the light of skilled and trained hands one can safely predict the developments of a real sculptor.

MR. CHISHOLM SPEAKS.

At a very interesting meeting of the Knights of Pythias Lodge Monday night, W. A. Chisholm, of Mississippi, recently transferred here was introduced by Chancellor M. M. Erskine and made several speeches. The meeting was a very good one and was participated in by Geo. E. Hadley, the veteran, and several others. The young men of the K. of P. lodge are doing a wonderful work.

While Germany is in a starving condition there is still life in the old land as the people are still able to strike and cut off all production in fuel, food and clothing while the cold winter is coming on. A dozen former German officers actually went to work before starvation came and if they had been at work before instead of fighting there would have been plenty to eat and wear.

Rev. C. T. Tally, former pastor of the Bryan Methodist church and now presiding elder of the Marlin district was in Bryan yesterday on his return from Wheelock and Alexander where he finished up the conference year's work.

SAME OLD STORY
WOMAN TAKES LIFE

(By Associated Press)
Chicago, Nov. 10.—Miss T. Saunders, 25 years old, of Laredo, Texas, committed suicide on the mezzanine floor of a downtown hotel here Tuesday by plunging a dagger into her heart. She died as she was being carried to her room. Henry Garver of this city was arrested by the police in connection with the suicide. Garver and Miss Saunders were seen talking together just before the tragedy. Suddenly Miss Saunders drew a dagger from her sleeve and plunged it into her breast. Garver stopped a passing bellboy and told him to call a doctor as "a woman had fainted." Garver was questioned by detectives of the homicide squad. Garver is interstate and foreign trade commissioner for the Chicago Association of Commerce. He has been with the association about 12 years. According to his secretary, Garver met Miss Saunders on a recent trip to Texas with members of the association.

The story of a hopeless infatuation and ace of spades, Gypsy death card and pearl handled dagger, which led to the death yesterday of Miss Theodore Sanders, Laredo, Texas, was unfolded before the coronor's jury this morning. Miss Sanders plunged the dagger into her heart while talking to her former fiancé, Harry Garver in the lounge of a downtown hotel. Garver was summoned to tell his story of a tempestuous romance. He met Miss Saunders on a southern trip as interstate foreign commissioner of Chicago Association of Commerce. Passionate love letters and telegrams found in her hand bag when she died told Garver repeated promises to marry her soon as he could get a divorce from his present wife who is now with his parents at Grant City, Missouri. Later letters seemed to reveal the diminished ardor, Garver told the police yesterday.

(By Associated Press)

GREATEST DEMAND
EVER KNOWN FOR
FOOT BALL SEATS

(By Associated Press)
Austin, Texas, Nov. 9.—Never before in the history of Texas football has there been such a gigantic demand for tickets as there is for the Texas and A. & M. game to be played in Austin on Thanksgiving day. The crowd which witnessed the game between the Longhorns and the Farmers in Austin in 1916 numbered 13,000 persons and was the largest Texas crowd up to that time. The number of spectators at that game, however, will not compare with that which will attend this year's contest.

Every effort is being made by L. Theo. Belmont, Director of Athletics of the University, to meet the demand for seats. The original seating plans were made with a view of accommodating 15,000 spectators and extra stands are now being erected at every corner of the field. All the seats on both sides of the field have been sold, and only the $2 seats in the end sections are now available. The north half of the field was given to A. & M., the south half to Texas. The University reserved the covered grandstand for out of town alumni, and these seats were quickly taken. The half of the bleachers allotted to Texas was reserved for the faculty and the Texas rooters.

This game is showing just how badly the University of Texas needs a good athletic field with a permanent stadium. The permanent stands at Clark Field seat only 8,000 persons, and the athletic authorities of the university face the task of doubling this seating capacity for the big games played here. The temporary stands being erected will involve an expense of approximately $8,000, and they will be torn down immediately after the game.

"The expense and trouble of erecting these stands to satisfy the people of the State who wish to attend the big games played by the University must be borne year after year, and this useless waste will continue until the appropriation for the proper sort of athletic equipment is secured. The situation is due to a false conception of economy," said Mr. Belmont.

DISASTER FACES
FARMERS OF NATION

(By Associated Press)
Boston, Nov. 10.—Sherman Lowell, of Fredonia New York, Master of the National Grange and Patrons of Husbandry, predicted the establishment of nation wide selling organization which would fix the price of farm products. If the farmer fails to receive the same pay for the same hours of work others receive, Lowell rejoiced that labor was able to secure a much higher rate of wage but added, "We little expected it to turn a demand of cheaper food from us without first ascertaining the costs of production for farmers. The farmer cannot at present pay the high prices of production."

TWO YEARS AGO
KAISER BILL FLED
OVER IN HOLLAND

(By Associated Press)
Doom, Holland, Nov. 10.—Two years ago tonight William Hohenzollern arrived at the Dutch frontier, a refugee Emperor. Today he is leading in this little village the life of a Dutch country gentleman, doing just about as he pleases and going almost where he desires, about the countryside, so long as he stays within the territorial limits prescribed by the Dutch government.

The Associated Press correspondent has been told by those in close touch with the former Emperor that during the past few months William has found much contentment in the life on his new estate here. He is said to feel certain that no further demands for his surrender will be made upon the Holland government.

The said judgment was reversed on the ground as it was necessary to discuss all questions presented.

TEXAS WANTS DUAL MEET WITH A. & M.

Austin, Texas, Nov. 10.—At a recent meeting of tennis men at the University of Texas, Charles Granger of Austin was chosen captain of the squad, and plans were formulated for several tournaments. Captain Granger has won his letter in tennis for three successive years, has won the Southwestern championship twice in both singles and doubles and the Southern championship last year in singles and doubles.

The twelve men on the squad at present have been ranked by D. A. Penick, coach. According to plans formed at the meeting a tournament will be held, beginning immediately, and any man on the squad will have the privilege of challenging any man above him, while any student of the University may challenge any member of the squad for his position. This plan is adopted to afford training for members of the squad and give opportunity to other tennis players of the University.

Besides the regular tournament held annually to decide the championship of the Southwest Conference, Coach Penick hopes to arrange several other meets for the team. Efforts are now being made to schedule a dual meet with A. & M.

JOINT CONFERENCE
FOR FORMING A CEM-ETERY ASSOCIATION

A joint conference of the City Development Committee of the Bryan and Brazos County Chamber of Commerce, and the Cemetery Advisory Committee of the City Commission, held a meeting Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the director's room of the First National Bank. This meeting was for the purpose of discussing plans for the organization of a Cemetery Association; it was the opinion of all present that such an association was badly needed, so that there might be an organized body to look after raising funds and giving direct attention to the cemetery; after going into all matters pertaining to the good of such an association, it was decided to call a mass meeting of the citizens at the Carnegie Library on Thursday, November 18th, at 3:30 o'clock. The following attended the meeting: Geo. A. Adams, chairman of city development committee; E. E. McAdams; Major L. L. McInnis; Mrs. Mabel Castles, cemetery advisory committee, and Secretary S. E. These two teams did not get together last season, but the fans may be assured of the game this season.

The next big game of interest in high school circles will be the game next Thursday (Armistice Day) at Kyle field, College, between Bryan High School and Houston High School. This game will have great bearing upon the state championship and will undoubtedly decide champions of South Texas. Neither team has been scored upon or beaten.

The game will be played under the auspices of the A. & M. College Memorial Stadium Fund. This fund is to be used in building a stadium at Kyle field in memory of the ex-students of A. & M. College who gave their lives in the recent world war.

SENATOR HARDING IS NOW TARPON FISHING

(By Associated Press)
Point Isabel, Nov. 10.—Senator Harding deserted golf for tarpon fishing again today, cancelling tentative appointment at the Brownsville country club to remain on the water all day trying his luck with rod and reel. Yesterday's try at Tarpon Angling made him a staunch devotee of the sport. Friends predicted that during the remainder of his vacation he would give very little time to any other form of recreation. Tomorrow Senator Harding is to speak at Brownsville at the Armistice Day celebration and may go into the city early to try out the country club golf links first.

CALL IS PLANNED

Mrs. Frank L. Webb, chapter chairman of the fourth Red Cross Roll Call, is making her plans for an intensive campaign for membership and subscriptions for the Red Cross from November 11th to 25th, inclusive. Mrs. Webb will announce the Bryan committees soon and is counting on the cooperation of those she asks to serve, and believes she will receive a hearty response. It is gratifying to know that the people from every part of the county are calling at the Red Cross office to renew their membership, without being solicited, and to make donations to the Red Cross for its future work. The Red Cross has done nothing spectacular since the war, but has gone on with its job steadily and faithfully, its influence being felt in many, many homes of sickness and sorrow, and the tangled affairs of hundreds of sailors and soldiers have been unraveled and their peace of mind and body restored. Having projected its Home Service work to the civilian population as well as to the ex-service men and their families, the Red Cross has proven itself an organization of comfort and mercy, here at home, as will be attested by many people of our own county and town.

Brazos county needs her Red Cross, and the Red Cross needs members and donations to continue the work now so well established. Let every man, woman and child respond to this annual call for membership and funds. The following sub-committee chairmen in the county have been appointed for the Red Cross Roll Call: College, Major Ike Ashburn; Millican, Prof. A. B. Ford; Wellborn, Mrs. George F. Lee; Reliance, Miss Essie Shealey; Tabor, Miss Mary Benbow; Steep Hollow, Mrs. Elbert Moore; Harvey, Mrs. J. C. Davidson; Smetana, Mrs. John Habarta; Steele Store and Stone City, Charley DeLegio; Kurten, Hamp Buchanan; Edge, Mrs. Mae Stevener Wilson; Macy, Miss Vida Nash; Wheelock, Lee W. Lys; Bohemians of the county, George Nedebalek; Italians of the county, George Patronella; colored people of the county, Ada Brown.

BRYAN HAS ARTIST IN CLAY FOOTBALL MODELING

A window display in the Parker-Astin Hardware Co., that is attracting much attention and deservedly so, both for its merits and the interest for the Bryan High school football team should be seen by every citizen. The window is a replica of a football gridiron and in clay figures is told the story of the Bryan Hi football team in action. The arrangement of the window was made by L. B. Maddox and the figures were modeled by Jesse McGee. The figures in the rough, modeled from common clay, show marked natural talent of a skilled workman and the motion, action and movement revealed is worthy of recognition of a trained artist. This art is a natural gift of Mr. McGee's; he never having had any training, but brought under the light of skilled and trained hands one can safely predict the developments of a real sculptor.

MR. CHISHOLM SPEAKS.

At a very interesting meeting of the Knights of Pythias Lodge Monday night, W. A. Chisholm, of Mississippi, recently transferred here was introduced by Chancellor M. M. Erskine and made several speeches. The meeting was a very good one and was participated in by Geo. E. Hadley, the veteran, and several others. The young men of the K. of P. Lodge are doing a wonderful work.

While Germany is in a starving condition there is still life in the old land as the people are still able to strike and cut off all production in fuel, food and clothing while the cold winter is coming on. A dozen former German officers actually went to work before starvation came and if they had been at work before instead of fighting there would have been plenty to eat and wear.

Rev. C. T. Tally, former pastor of the Bryan Methodist church and now presiding elder of the Marlin district was in Bryan yesterday on his return from Wheelock and Alexander where he finished up the conference year's work.

LARRY M'GEE OF BRYAN
IN THE ATLANTIC FLEET

Larry McGee, a son of Mrs. Ella McGee of Bryan, is now a member of the crack Marine detachment on the U. S. S. Florida, of the Atlantic fleet. The Florida is now stationed at New York City. Young McGee was assigned in 1919, after having served at the big Marine Corps post at Parris Island, S. C.

All the battleships and big cruisers of the navy on the active list carry a detachment of the sea soldiers ranging from 40 to 75 men and officers. The Marines man the torpedo defense batteries at target practice and in battle and are always available for landing forces in the countries that border on the Caribbean should an outbreak or revolution threaten American lives and interests.

This winter the fleet will mobilize in Cuban waters for target practice and will land a regiment of Marines for shore exercises. It will then proceed through the Panama Canal to meet the Pacific fleet, for joint maneuvers. The fleets will then separate and will visit South American ports, after which they will return to their respective bases at New York City and San Diego, Calif.

HARVEY NEWS ITEMS.

Harvey, Nov. 10.—Now that the excitement of the election is over, by the way though, the excitement never reached Harvey. She does not allow such small things as presidential elections to perturb her soul, but voted the democratic ticket in a quiet and dutiful manner, but to resume, the big sales in Bryan are over for a while too, perhaps there will be space in your excellent paper for the news from little old Harvey once more.

Mrs. A. M. Schultz and daughter, Miss Jonnie, visited Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Schram at Kurten last Saturday and Sunday. While there Miss Jonnie visited her cousin, Miss Rosie Mae Schram.

Miss Ardella Jones was forced, from continued returns of fever, to resign her school position in the school at Denton, and come home to recuperate.

Mrs. Willie Gray Jones has been on the sick list again but is improving now.

Little Tot Jones, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Jones, had a serious attack of nose bleeding last week. Tot had the flu last winter, followed by whooping cough in the spring, which left her in quite a weakened condition. We sincerely hope she will soon be well again.

The all day rain of last Sunday broke up the all day meeting we were to have had at the Harvey church, and cut us out of a pleasant social day with a good dinner on the grounds, and the B. Y. P. U. still unorganized. They will try it again on the afternoon of the third Sunday in this month at 3 o'clock p. m. No collections, no refreshments. We hope all the young folks will be sure to be present and begin this good work and old ones too.

The Ladies Aid met at the home of Mrs. Kan Kelley yesterday, and had a very pleasant meeting. Mrs. Cole, our president, read us a beautiful original poem, suggested to her by hearing the song, "Jesus Lover of my Soul," sung by an old friend of hers who was dying, and was upon conscious.

We have been rained out for three weeks at Bright Light Sabbath school, but last Sunday we had a small attendance of about 14 or 15 with a few visitors, and Mrs. J. C. Davidson, the superintendent, put before them the subject of "The Near East Relief," and after reading just enough from a little pamphlet to let the people understand the great distress these Armenian orphans were in we took up a collection and received about $12.00, mostly cash balance to be paid next Sunday. We hope every soul in the community will feel it his or her duty to contribute something to help these thousands of war orphans, or many will die this winter, mostly children of a Christian people. The Armenians, the earliest people to embrace the Christian religion. Those who contributed so far were: Mrs. J. C. Davidson, 2.00; Dr. J. C. Davidson, $1.00; Mrs. Robert Carroll, 1.00; Rev. Ollie Smith, $1.00; Mr. Will Goen, $1.00; Clyde Goen, $1.00; Mr. and Mrs. G. Buchanan, $1.00; Mrs. Alice Cole, $1.00; Noah Cole, 50c; Walter Pate, 50c; Sam Pate, 25c; Aubrey Pate, 25c; Aubrey Jones, 25c; Miss Mae Byrd Blanton, 50c; Miss Ina Hensard, 50c; Preston Goen, 50c; Mrs. Carl Morgan, 50c; Robert Sellers, 25c; Mrs. Kan Kelley, 25c. Mr. Edgar Peters said he would present the cause before his church at Harvey on the third Sunday and we have every hope to believe they will respond liberally, as they always have.

COTTON GROWERS OF TEXAS EARNESTLY URGED TO ORGANIZE

(By Wellington Drink, Editor of the Cotton Grower)

An abundance of witnesses have appeared thus far in the court of public opinion to prove conclusively the utter unsoundness of the cotton industry as now constituted. Every one admits the fallacy of the prevailing sampling system, whereby the cotton grower is forced to submit to the wholesale waste of a large part of the wares he has for sale. Everyone deplors the absence of warehousing facilities, which is costing hundreds of millions of dollars every year. Every honest person condemns those several practices. The preponderant question is: What shall be done?

There are two answers to this question, offered by two differing groups. Let me state these two answers in two brief paragraphs, after which I shall explain in more detail the one which appeals to me as being the more practicable.

The first answer involves a meeting of "cotton men," which means growers, buyers, bankers, lawyers, school teachers, merchants and whoever else cares to listen to a few hours of successful oratory. It involves the passing of resolutions denouncing in harsh terms those whose commercial conduct has not been of the most exemplary brand. It involves the adoption of a program that is full of such phrases as "We should do this and so," "We advise," "We shall encourage," and "We are hopeful." It involves, finally, resolutions thanking the convention city for its hospitality and complimenting the convention on the "progress" it has made.

The second answer, and the only sensible one for the man who is wholly conscientious and without prejudice is one such as is offered by the United Cotton Growers' Association of America. It involves the building and control of warehouses by the farmers themselves. It involves the centralization and unification of the warehouse, the gin, the compress and the classing a vice under the direction of the growers themselves, acting in close cooperation. It involves the elimination of that great unnecessary army of men who are getting rich from cotton without contributing proportionately to the good of the industry. It involves the gradual assumption by the association of the duties of the middlemen and the sale of the cotton direct to the spinner whenever possible. It involves a financial investment by the cotton grower, assuring him coincidentally that his money will be handled by men of his own choosing. It involves, finally, a limitation of membership in the association to actual producers of cotton. It is distinctly set apart in this respect, from every other organization that is making a bid for farmer support.

Here, then, are two possible answers to the question, "What shall be done?" One of the answers is vague, uncertain, indefinite, a subterfuge. The other solution is definite, concrete, sound, workable. Were I to ask a speculator which of these solutions he prefers, he unhesitatingly would go on record for the first.

Were I, on the other hand, to ask the Texas cotton grower where his preference lies—well, I will leave it to him to speak for himself. And as a matter of interesting fact, he is speaking for himself every day and every week; by the hundred and by the thousand he is joining the United Cotton Growers' Association of America.

As soon as the preliminary organization work shall have been completed within a few weeks, the headquarters of this organization will occupy permanent offices in Houston. Temporary offices are located at Corpus Christi. A continuously growing office force is busy there taking care of the growing tide of inquiries and applications that flow in from all directions.

What does Fred Davis, commissioner of agriculture, think of the United Cotton Growers Association of America? He's heart and soul for it. Ask him! W. B. Yeary, cotton specialist of the department, is on the board of governors.

Innumerable small bankers approve the United Cotton Growers Association of America because it is financially safe. Agricultural economists commend the organization because it is built on a structural plan similar to the notably successful plans of the California Raisin Growers and the Canadian Grain Growers Limited.

A Change in System
All right. So much is understood. Now for the brass tacks—and let's make 'em sharp! First of all, we'll consider the matter of gin compression, a method to which the United Cotton Growers Association is committed.

The gin compress of tomorrow will be as accepted an institution as is the automobile of today. The gin compress entails the elimination of the gin and the compress as two separate entities and the substitution of a plant that will perform the operations of both.

A gin compress, round or square, can be installed in any gin and operated in connection with or independent of the square box press installed in such gin. The cotton can be instantly shifted from one press to another by the use of a valve or shifting board in the lint flue. The gin compress is operated with the same power that operates the gin.

Gin Compression practical

Gin compression is neither a fad nor a folly. It is economical to the farmer, a good investment for the gin owner.

"But what about the poor compress man?" I once heard asked. Do you remember that well-worn query of the old days, "What about the poor brewery man?" Well, the streets aren't exactly crowded with ex-brewery men turned beggars, are they? Not that there is any connection, of course, between breweries and compresses.

Gin compression is to be found on the path of a more sensible tomorrow. The idea lies at the very crossroads of the improved system of warehousing and marketing to which the United Cotton Growers Association of America is definitely committed.

Briefly, what are the outstanding advantages of gin compression? These: A greater density and a reduced bulk, which mean that one warehouse may be made to do the same service as three, reduced tare, which means less discrepancy between gross and net weight and a somewhat reduced cost; cheaper insurance; a fiber that, contrary to being injured, is benefited; the elimination of country damage; the elimination of unnecessary sampling, reduced transportation expense, represented by the elimination of the distance between the gin and the compress, and in some cases by the offering of preferential rates by the railroads.

Now just where are we headed? What does all this mean? We are headed toward the gin compress. It means that gin owners are going to install this machinery, the cotton growers will set up gin compression of their own, in their own plants, under their own ownership and control. As a matter of fact, that ownership and control will be the eventual outcome, under any circumstance. There are, however, certain gin men who display a disposition to investigate gin compression with the intention of adopting it in their own properties. There are certain other forward-looking gin men who stand ready to do whatever is necessary to improve the system now in vogue, provided they can do it with profit to themselves. Cotton growers stand ready to cooperate these, rather than to try to outlive them.

"In our reform movement," says Fred Roberts, president of the United Cotton Growers Association of America, "we must necessarily begin at the gin. If we had gin compresses operating, sampling the cotton when it is being ginned, and should then build warehouses near the gins, or biggest trouble would be ended."

The whole matter of gin compression is a matter of facts. It should be weighed in the mind as a problem of business, of bookkeeping, of feasibility. Blueprints, specifications, cost and expense figures, are our best text books for this study.

The United Cotton Growers Association of America is not the only organization that approves gin compression, although it is beyond doubt the only one that definitely commits the growers to a concrete plan for its universal adoption. Other organizations that have recommended the adoption of gin compression are the storage committee of the War Industries Board in cooperation with the Southern Commercial Congress, the National Council of American Cotton Manufacturers, the World Cotton Conference of 1919 and the Farmers Educational and Co-Operative Union.

Fewer Employees

Too many employees, excessive waste and inefficiency are involved in the cotton business of today. If the cotton farmer ever expects to profit from his business it is incumbent on him to assume the reins of control. Too long has he permitted the other fellow to manage his affairs.

Suppose John Jones, the owner of a great automobile plant, should content himself with devoting his energies to the problems of production. He would soon find himself confronted by a disturbing system in many ways running contrary to his best interests, dominated by an assemblage of men intent on their own profits.

So it is with cotton, the greatest single industry in the world. Old Man Cotton Grower has allowed his business to fall into a sad way. If ever expects to rescue his affairs, it will be necessary for him to dust off the executive chair, clean off his spectacles, roll up his sleeves and take an aggressive personal hand in things. It devolves on him to apply to the other branches of his business the same careful management that has characterized the production branch.

Last year Old Man Cotton Grower lost $200,000,000 by reason of country damage and "city crop." Every year sees untold wealth taken from the pockets of the producer by reason of too many samplings. It has been determined that the average bale undergoes 12 samplings on the road between the producer and spinner. The story of the American cotton bale of today is a story of public disgrace, of industrial scandal; it is a narrative of improper warehousemen, wrong baling methods, a multiplicity of middlemen.

When Old Man Cotton Grower takes complete charge of his big business through the instrumentality of the United Cotton Growers Association of America, his first act will be to put his factory product—the cotton bale—under cover. His next act will be to centralize all of those operations that ought to be centralized, and to put them under a centralized authority. These acts will have the effect of eliminating employed in the cotton business; this includes a corps of cotton buyers said to be 10,000 or more in number. It will substitute for this volunteer army of speculators, buyers and others, a comparatively small but competent force of men who are paid on a salary basis rather than on a commission basis, and who are responsible to the association for being hired and fired. This in itself represents a large saving effected. It is but one of the many advantages accruing, aside from a higher market, from an organization of producers that proposes to stand hitched for the purpose of presenting a united front in the turbulent days ahead.

A Story That Thrills

I have just been reading a history of the Grain Growers Ltd. of Canada. And what a history it is! It is a tale of hardships met, of difficulties surmounted, of problems grappled, of patience and courage and lofty motive. Scores of articles have been written about the Canadian grain growers' movement. A thick volume has been penned by a clever writer, telling what these pioneer cooperators had to contend with and overcome. Says this writer, Hopkins Moorehouse by name it is "an authentic record of the Grain Growers' Association in three provinces—why and how they came to be organized with what the farmers had to contend and something of their remarkable achievements in cooperative marketing during the past decade. It is a tale of strife dimmed by high lights and some shadows. It is a record worthy of presentation and one which otherwise would pass in some of its details with the fading memories of the pathfinders."

I wish every cotton grower in America could read this stirring tale. I fancy he would find therein the story of himself and other progressive souls. I fancy that if we could crystal-gaze into the future we would discover a history of the United Cotton Growers Association of America corresponding in all but the details themselves with the history of the Canadian Grain Growers.

This association also is contending for an improved system of marketing. It, too, has powerful interests to fight. It, too, is struggling to establish a wholesome heritage bright with happiness, rich with content, laden with advantages not now enjoyed on the average farm.

In 12 months' time Texas farmers will begin to glimpse the fulfillment of their hopes. In 12 years' time—when the United Cotton Growers are as old as the Canadian Grain Growers Ltd. now is—every cotton growing community in the country will be solidly organized. Southern farmers will then have "the world by the tail, and a down hill pull." I am neither a prophet nor the son of a prophet. What I speak has been spoken before in terms of accomplished fact. Grain growers, raisin growers, cattleman, wool growers are no different temperamentally from cotton growers. What others have done can be done by the United Cotton Growers Association of America. The association will succeed because it is right. The record time in which it has organized 45 Texas counties is a reliable index, I believe, of the progress it will make in the future.

HARVEY NEWS ITEMS.

Harvey, Nov. 10.—Now that the excitement of the election is over, by the way though, the excitement never reached Harvey. She does not allow such small things as presidential elections to perturb her soul, but voted the democratic ticket in a quiet and dutiful manner, but to resume, the big sales in Bryan are over for a while too, perhaps there will be space in your excellent paper for the news from little old Harvey once more.

Mrs. A. M. Schultz and daughter, Miss Jonnie, visited Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Schram at Kurten last Saturday and Sunday. While there Miss Jonnie visited her cousin, Miss Rosie Mae Schram.

Miss Ardella Jones was forced, from continued returns of fever, to resign her school position in the school at Denton, and come home to recuperate.

Mrs. Willie Gray Jones has been on the sick list again but is improving now.

Little Tot Jones, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Jones, had a serious attack of nose bleeding last week. Tot had the flu last winter, followed by whooping cough in the spring, which left her in quite a weakened condition. We sincerely hope she will soon be well again.

The all day rain of last Sunday broke up the all day meeting we were to have had at the Harvey church, and cut us out of a pleasant social day with a good dinner on the grounds, and the B. Y. P. U. still unorganized. They will try it again on the afternoon of the third Sunday in this month at 3 o'clock p. m. No collections, no refreshments. We hope all the young folks will be sure to be present and begin this good work and old ones too.

The Ladies Aid met at the home of Mrs. Kan Kelley yesterday, and had a very pleasant meeting. Mrs. Cole, our president, read us a beautiful original poem, suggested to her by hearing the song, "Jesus Lover of my Soul," sung by an old friend of hers who was dying, and was unconscious.

We have been rained cut for three weeks at Bright Light Sabbath school, but last Sunday we had a small attendance of about 14 or 15 with a few visitors, and Mrs. J. C. Davidson, the superintendent, put before them the subject of "The Near East Relief," and after reading just enough from a little pamphlet to let the people understand the great distress these Armenian orphans were in we took up a collection and received about $12.00, mostly cash, balance to be paid next Sunday. We hope every soul in the community will feel it his or her duty to contribute something to help these thousands of war orphans, or many will die this winter, mostly children of a Christian people. The Armenians, the earliest people to embrace the Christian religion. Those who contributed so far were: Mrs. J. C. Davidson, 2.00; Dr. J. C. Davidson, 1.00; Mrs. Robert Carroll, 1.00; Rev. Ollie Smith, 1.00; Mr. Will Goen, 1.00; Clyde Goen, 1.00; Mr. and Mrs. C. Buchanan, 1.00; Mrs. Alice Cole, 1.00; Noah Cole, 50c; Walter Pate, 50c; Sam Pate, 25c; Aubrey Pate, 25c; Aubrey Jones, 25c; Miss Mae Byrd Blanton, 50c; Miss Ina Hensarling, 50c; Preston Goen, 50c; Mrs. Carl Morgan, 50c; Robert Sellers, 25c; Mrs. Kan Kelley, 25c. Mr. Edgar Peters said he would present the cause before his church at Harvey on the third Sunday and we have every hope to believe they will respond liberally, as they always have.

Suppose John Jones, the owner of a great automobile plant, should content himself with devoting his energies to the problems of production. He would soon find himself confronted by a disturbing system in many ways running contrary to his best interests, dominated by an assortment of men intent on their own profits.

So it is with cotton, the greatest single industry in the world. Old Man Cotton Grower has allowed his business to fall into a sad way. If ever expects to rescue his affairs, it will be necessary for him to dust off the executive chair, clean off his spectacles, roll up his sleeves and take an aggressive personal hand in things. It devolves on him to apply to the other branches of his business the same careful management that has characterized the production branch.

Last year Old Man Cotton Grower lost $200,000,000 by reason of country damage and "city crop." Every year sees untold wealth taken from the pockets of the producer by reason of too many samplings. It has been determined that the average bale undergoes 12 samplings on the road between the producer and spinner. The story of the American cotton bale of today is a story of public disgrace, of industrial scandal; it is a narrative of improper warehouse, wrong hauling methods, a multiplicity of middlemen.

When Old Man Cotton Grower takes complete charge of his big business through the instrumentality of the United Cotton Growers Association of America, his first act will be to put his factory product—his cotton bale—under cover. His next task will be to centralize all of those operations that ought to be centralized, and to put them under a centralized authority. These acts will have the effect of eliminating employed in the cotton business; this includes a corps of cotton buyers said to be 10,000 or more in number. It will substitute for this volunteer army of speculators, buyers and others, a comparatively small but competent force of men who are paid on a salary basis rather than on a commission basis, and who are responsible to the association for being hired and fired. This in itself represents a large saving effected. press man?" I once heard asked. Do you remember that well-worn query of the old days, "What about the poor brewer man?" Well, the streets aren't exactly crowded with ex-brewery men turned beggars, are they? Not that there is any connection, of course, between breweries and compresses.

Gin compression is to be found on the path of a more sensible tomorrow. The idea lies at the very crossroads of the improved system of warehousing and marketing to which the United Cotton Growers Association of America is definitely committed.

Briefly, what are the outstanding advantages of gin compression? These: A greater density and a reduced bulk, which mean that one warehouse may be made to do the same service as three, reduced tare, which means less discrepancy between gross and net weight and a somewhat reduced cost; cheaper insurance; a fiber that, contrary to being injured, is benefited; the elimination of country damage; the elimination of unnecessary sampling, reduced transportation expense, represented by the elimination of the distance between the gin and the compress, and in some cases by the offering of preferential rates by the railroads.

Now just where are we headed? What does all this mean? We are headed toward the gin compress. It means that gin owners are going to install this machinery, the cotton growers will set up gin compression of their own, in their own plants, under their own ownership and control. As a matter of fact, that ownership and control will be the eventual outcome, under any circumstance. There are, however, certain gin men who display a disposition to investigate gin compression with the intention of adopting it in their own properties. There are certain other forward-looking gin men who stand ready to do whatever is necessary to improve the system now in vogue, provided they can do it with profit to themselves. Cotton growers stand ready to cooperate these, rather than to try to outlive them.

"In our reform movement," says Fred Roberts, president of the United Cotton Growers Association of America, "we must necessarily begin at the gin. If we had gin compresses operating, sampling the cotton when it is being ginned, and should then build warehouses near the gins, or biggest trouble would be ended."

The whole matter of gin compression is a matter of facts. It should be weighed in the mind as a problem of business, of bookkeeping, of feasibility. Blueprints, specifications, cost and expense figures, are our best text books for this study.

The United Cotton Growers Association of America is not the only organization that approves gin compression, although it is beyond doubt the only one that definitely commits the growers to a concrete plan for its universal adoption. Other organizations that have recommended the adoption of gin compression are the storage committee of the War Industries Board in cooperation with the Southern Commercial Congress, the National Council of American Cotton Manufacturers, the World Cotton Conference of 1919 and the Farmers Educational and Co-Operative Union.

Fewer Employees

Too many employees, excessive waste and inefficiency are involved in the cotton business of today. If the cotton farmer ever expects to profit from his business it is incumbent on him to assume the reins of control. Too long has he permitted the other fellow to manage his affairs.

Suppose John Jones, the owner of a great automobile plant, should content himself with devoting his energies to the problems of production. He would soon find himself confronted by a disturbing system in many ways running contrary to his best interests, dominated by an assortment of men intent on their own profits.

So it is with cotton, the greatest single industry in the world. Old Man Cotton Grower has allowed his business to fall into a sad way. A Story That Thrills

I have just been reading a history of the Grain Growers Ltd. of Canada. And what a history it is! It is a tale of hardships met, of difficulties surmounted, of problems grappled, of patience and courage and lofty motive. Scores of articles have been written about the Canadian grain growers' movement. A thick volume has been penned by a clever writer, telling what these pioneer cooperators had to contend with and overcome. Says this writer, Hopkins Moorehouse by name it is "an authentic record of the Grain Growers' Association in three provinces—why and how they came to be organized with what the farmers had to contend and something of their remarkable achievements in cooperative marketing during the past decade. It is a tale of strife dimmed by high lights and some shadows. It is a record worthy of presentation and one which otherwise would pass in some of its details with the fading memories of the pathfinders."

I wish every cotton grower in America could read this stirring tale. I fancy he would find therein the story of himself and other progressive souls. I fancy that if we could crystal-gaze into the future we would discover a history of the United Cotton Growers' Association of America corresponding in all but the details themselves with the history of the Canadian Grain Growers.

This association also is contending for an improved system of marketing it, too, has powerful interests to fight. It, too, is struggling to establish a wholesome heritage bright with happiness, rich with content, laden with advantages not now enjoyed on the average farm.

In 12 months' time Texas farmers will begin to glimpse the fulfillment of their hopes. In 12 years' time—when the United Cotton Growers are as old as the Canadian Grain Growers Ltd. now is—every cotton growing community in the country will be solidly organized. Southern farmers will then have "the world by the tail, and a down hill pull." I am neither a prophet nor the son of a prophet. What I speak has been spoken before in terms of accomplished fact. Grain growers, raisin growers, cattleman, wool growers are no different temperamentally from cotton growers. What others have done can be done by the United Cotton Growers Association of America. The association will succeed because it is right. The record time in which it has organized 45 Texas counties is a reliable index, I believe, of the progress it will make in the future.

WINNING BIRDS IN THE THIRD TEXAS NATIONAL EGG LAYING CONTEST NAMED

M. A. Lee, Seadrift Gets Prize On Pen of Five; Single Comb White Leghorn Owned by L. F. McKay of Temple High Individual With Record of 228 Eggs

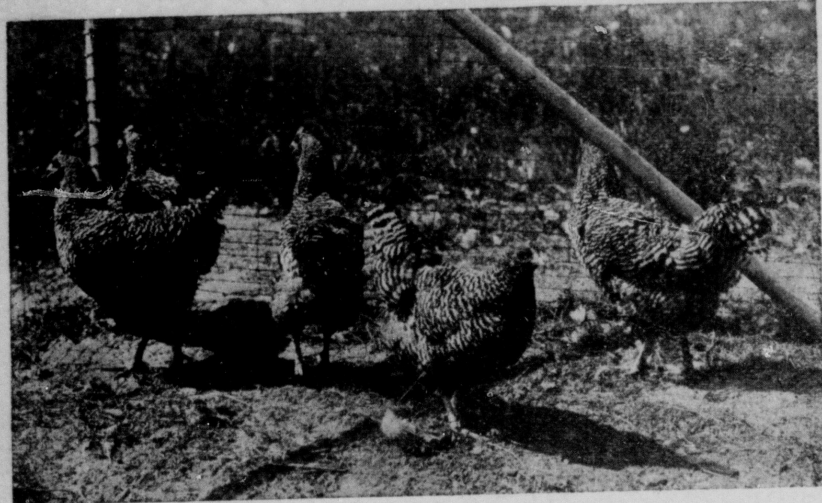

The third Texas National Egg Laying Contest conducted at the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College closed Sunday night, October 31.

The highest laying pen for the entire twelve months was five Barred Plymouth Rocks, owned by M. A. Lee, Seadrift, Texas, with a production of 9994 eggs. The individual productions of the birds in this pen were 222, 205, 191 and 166, an average of 198.8 per hen. The second pen were also barred Plymouth Rocks with 790 eggs, and the third and fourth pens were Single Comb White Leghorns with productions of 786 and 765 eggs.

The highest individual was a Single Comb White Leghorn No. 19, owned by L. F. McKay of Temple, Texas, Highest Individual for Year S. C. White Leghorn No. 19, With Record of 228 Eggs For Year.

Highest Pen for Year, Barred Plymouth Rocks, Laid 994 Eggs; Average, 198.8 Eggs.

This hen has been a consistent layer throughout the entire year. The second highest hen was a Barred Plymouth Rock No. 209 with a record of 222 eggs. The eight highest records for the year were 228, 222, 211, 210, 205, 197, 191 and 189. Of these three were Single Comb White Leghorns and five were Barred Plymouth Rocks. Five birds laid 200 eggs, or more, which was 4.46 per cent of the birds competing. The average for all birds in the contest was 115.45 eggs.

The lowest layer in the entire contest laid only 15 eggs.

T. J. Conway, poultry husbandman of the College who conducted the contest, in commenting on this peculiar record said:

"This bird was in the same pen with the highest layer and received the same care, feed and attention, and illustrates very strikingly the effect of good breeding. It is well established at present that a hen to be a good or high layer must have been bred for this purpose. Breed is of little consequence in egg production, but strain or breeding is the factor that influences the number of eggs. Any breed can be developed into fine laying by careful, systematic breeding.

The highest pen for the month of October was Barred Plymouth Rocks with a production of 86 eggs. The second highest pen was S. C. White Leghorns with 800 eggs.

The highest individual for the last month was a S. C. White Leghorn, No. 4, owned by Eglantine Farms, Greensboro, Md., with a production of 2 eggs. Eight hens laid 20 eggs or more for the month.

The total egg production for the 12 months was 14,272 or 1,189 1-3 dozens. The total feed consumption was 10,378 pounds or an average of 8.72 pounds per dozen of eggs.

To produce one egg it required .725 pounds of feed, not quite 3-4 of a pound divided as follows:

.0518 lbs. Wheat Bran
.1056 lbs. Corn Meal
.1056 lbs. Ground Milo
.0872 lbs. Meat Scrap
.1744 lbs. Whole Corn
.0518 lbs. Oats
.1553 lbs. Whole Milo
.731 lbs. total.

The Fourth Contest opened November 1st with 520 birds competing representing the best breeders of Texas and of the United States.

SATURDAY GREAT DAY FOR A. & M. COLLEGE

CORPS IS PRAISED FOR EXCELLENT SHOWING MADE AT THE COTTON PALACE.

(A. & M. Bulletin)

"The eyes of Texas" were upon the president, faculty and cadet corps of A. & M. at Waco Saturday. The occasion was fully demonstrative of what W. V. Crawford, president of the Cotton Palace said at the luncheon tendered the A. & M. officials in the Raleigh Hotel Saturday at noon, to the effect that the "A. & M. College had made the Texas Cotton Palace what it is today."

Mr. Crawford said he had rather be president of the Cotton Palace on A. & M. day than on any other of the sixteen days of the exposition. "The A. & M. College football team started the athletics of the Cotton Palace, initiated that feature, and has made her day the greatest of them all," he said. He recalled the fact that the attendance on A. & M. day last year was 101,000 far above any other day of the year and guessed correctly when he predicted that the attendance Saturday would be far above the total for last year.

He thanked President Bizzell and the entire faculty of the college for their magnificent support of the Cotton Palace and expressed a hope that they would continue to come to Waco with the student body every year hereafter.

In responding to Mr. Crawford's remarks President Bizzell thanked him heartily and assured him that the faculty and student body of A. & M. had no intention of abandoning the custom of having a day at the Cotton Palace, but instead had one ambition to make it a bigger and better day by bringing a larger delegation each year. "Both faculty and student body have become infatuated with the plan of coming to Waco, and so intent is their desire to make the trip here each year that the preliminary convocation of the faculty held to decide on the matter, after the invitation has been extended to us each year, has grown to be quite a perfunctory affair, for the decision to come is always unanimous and generally known in advance. We look forward to our trip here with great pleasure," he said.

Addressing the city of Waco as a whole President Bizzell said "close ties bound it to the A. & M. College. The large number of excellent students we have from here," he said, "elevates our respect for the citizenship of Waco. We appreciate the Waco boys more than we can express."

Judge Sleeper was called on for a short talk and he told of his early school days at the A. & M. College. He attended the first session of the college after it was established in January, 1877. In eloquent language he traced the growth of the college from a "wilderness to a stage where it has taken its place not only as one of the greatest institutions in this state but in the United States." Judge Sleeper said he was proud of the distinction of having received instruction at the A. & M. College.

Major Ike S. Ashburn, commandant of the college expressed his and the college's appreciation of the co-operation and support extended by the Cotton Palace officials and the Waco people.

About 100 A. & M. College officials and their wives attended the luncheon which was tendered them by the Cotton Palace Management.

Others present included: Major L. R. Dougherty, professor of military science and tactics, Major W. H. H. Morris, Captain C. D. Horne, Captain F. J. DeRohan, Captain W. T. over the state of Texas for the purpose of viewing the A. & M. cadet corps and incidentally the Cotton Palace.

The review was pronounced magnificent by everyone who saw it and the best that the corps has engaged in by those who had viewed it in previous years. It brought cheer to the heart of President Bizzell and the ever evident pride that he has for the corps welled from him in warm and earnest acknowledgements as he listened to the words of praise voiced by the Cotton Palace officials, Waco officials and other prominent Texans who stood with him in the reviewing stand on Austin street in front of the Raleigh Hotel, as the khaki columns swept by.

Major L. R. Dougherty gave out a statement yesterday in which he said, "The Military Department expresses its greatest appreciation to the cadet corps for the exceptionally efficient appearance of the corps."

"From the hour of departure to the hour of return, the corps showed its soldierly appearance and gentlemanly bearing themselves to be true sons of Texas A. & M."

"Never before have we seen a better exhibition than that given by the Bais, Lieutenant R. W. Wilson and Lieutenant L. A. Kurtz; C. E. Friley, registrar; J. C. Nagle, dean of engineering; Miss Juliette Castles, duchess from A. & M.; Miss Lila Wickes, duchess from Bryan."

Mrs. Bizzell and Miss Elaine Bizzell accompanied President Bizzell.

ed and did not restrain themselves from grasping the hands of the first cadets they met and telling them of the greatest honor of their lives in being the mother of an A. & M. boy.

Calisthenics Drill. There is no doubt that outside of the Ross Volunteer drill given every year at commencement time at the college that the calisthenics drill given by the corps under direction of Major W. H. H. Morris on the football field just preceding the game was the most beautiful exhibition ever made by the cadets. The grandstands could not be restrained from almost continuous applause and the Baylor rooters were silenced with a reverential wonder.

That famous "T" formed by the corps between halves and the new feature of the A. M. C. formed by a number of cadets in undershirt remaining in the grandstand while the others marched on the field only enforced the admiration of the spectators to an ineffable degree.

The band was the indispensable part of the whole wonderful show.

Football Game. The score of 24 to 0 is merely the result of the game. It tells nothing of the work of the Aggie football team which was praiseworthy in every respect. The real story of the game is concerned with the individual exhibitions and they are hard to describe.

Higginbotham demonstrated his real worth on the gridiron, he plunged the line for big gains and he punted for safety many times. He was hailed by many as easily the star of the game. Mahan maintained his record of a football wonder, as he never plunged without securing gains even though he went up against wall opponents. Sport writers for several Texas papers who were on the field conceded Drake a place on the all-star team of the southwest.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL OPENED TODAY

On account of Armistice Day parade at the A. & M. College, attracting all Bryan there tomorrow to enjoy its patriotic program, the Red Cross roll call committee, under the direction of the county chairman, Mrs. Frank L. Webb, and the city chairman, Miss Della Lawrence, were out today, doing a little advance work. The committees were accorded hearty and cordial response from the people everywhere, and were greatly encouraged in their efforts to put Brazos county over the top again this year for the American Red Cross. Memberships have fairly flooded the roll call headquarters, and every man, woman and child is enrolling again for the Red Cross. The business men of Bryan, with their usual generous response, have not only joined the organization, and wear a 1521 button, but have also made cash contributions to the local chapter fund, to make possible the continuation of this noble work in Brazos county. A list of those showing their loyalty to the Red Cross by making special cash donations will be published when the list is complete. All soliciting committees will continue their work through the Roll Call dates, Nov. 11th to 25th inclusive.

WINNING BIRDS IN THE THIRD TEXAS NATIONAL EGG LAYING CONTEST NAMED

M. A. Lee, Seadrift Gets Prize On Pen of Five; Single Comb White Leghorn Owned by L. F. McKay of Temple High Individual With Record of 228 Eggs

The third Texas National Egg Laying Contest conducted at the Texas Agricultural & Mechanical College closed Sunday night, October 31.

The highest laying pen for the entire twelve months was five Barred Plymouth Rocks, owned by M. A. Lee, Seadrift, Texas, with a production of 994 eggs. The individual productions of the birds in this pen were 222, 205, 191 and 186, an average of 198.8 per hen. The second pen were also Barred Plymouth Rocks with 790 eggs, and the third and fourth pens were Single Comb White Leghorns with productions of 786 and 765 eggs.

The highest individual was a Single Comb White Leghorn No. 19, owned by L. F. McKay of Temple, Texas, with a production of 228 eggs. This hen has been a consistent layer throughout the entire year. The second highest hen was a Barred Plymouth Rock No. 209 with a record of 222 eggs. The eight highest records for the year were 228, 222, 211, 210, 205, 197, 191 and 189. Of these three were Single Comb White Leghorns and five were Barred Plymouth Rocks. Five birds laid 200 eggs, or more, which was 4.46 per cent of the birds competing. The average for all birds in the contest was 115.45 eggs.

The lowest layer in the entire contest laid only 15 eggs.

T. J. Conway, poultry husbandman of the College who conducted the contest, in commenting on this peculiar record said:

"This bird was in the same pen with the highest layer and received the same care, feed and attention, and illustrates very strikingly the effect of good breeding. It is well established at present that a hen to be a good or high layer must have been bred for this purpose. Breed is of little consequence in egg production, but strain or breeding is the factor that influences the number of eggs. Any breed can be developed into fine laying by careful, systematic breeding.

The highest pen for the month of October was Barred Plymouth Rocks with a production of 86 eggs. The second highest pen was S. C. White Leghorns with 800 eggs.

The highest individual for the last month was a S. C. White Leghorn, No. 4, owned by Eglantine Farms, Greensboro, Md., with a production of 2 eggs. Eight hens laid 20 eggs or more for the month.

The total egg production for the 12 months was 14,272 or 1,189 1-3 dozens. The total feed consumption was 10,378 pounds or an average of 8.72 pounds per dozen of eggs.

To produce one egg it required .725 pounds of feed, not quite 3-4 of a pound divided as follows:

.0518 lbs. Wheat Bran
.1056 lbs. Corn Meal
.1056 lbs. Ground Milo
.0872 lbs. Meat Scrap
.1744 lbs. Whole Corn
.0518 lbs. Oats
.1553 lbs. Whole Milo

.731 lbs. total.

The Fourth Contest opened November 1st with 520 birds competing representing the best breeders of Texas and of the United States.

The Eagle would be glad to see the 37th legislature at the session next January make appropriation to build dormitory room at A. & M. College for 1,000 new students. This would meet the requirements of Texas for two or three years and is badly needed.

SATURDAY GREAT DAY FOR A. & M. COLLEGE

CORPS IS PRAISED FOR EXCELLENT SHOWING MADE AT THE COTTON PALACE.

(A. & M. Bulletin)

"The eyes of Texas" were upon the president, faculty and cadet corps of A. & M. at Waco Saturday. The occasion was fully demonstrative of what W. V. Crawford, president of the Cotton Palace said at the luncheon tendered the A. & M. officials in the Raleigh Hotel Saturday at noon, to the effect that the "A. & M. College had made the Texas Cotton Palace what it is today."

Mr. Crawford said he had rather be president of the Cotton Palace on A. & M. day than on any other of the sixteen days of the exposition. "The A. & M. College football team started the athletics of the Cotton Palace, initiated that feature, and has made her day the greatest of them all," he said. He recalled the fact that the attendance on A. & M. day last year was 101,000 far above any other day of the year and guessed correctly when he predicted that the attendance Saturday would be far above the total for last year.

He thanked President Bizzell and the entire faculty of the college for "their magnificent support of the Cotton Palace and expressed a hope that they would continue to come to Waco with the student body every year hereafter."

In responding to Mr. Crawford's remarks President Bizzell thanked him heartily and assured him that the faculty and student body of A. & M. had no intention of abandoning the custom of having a day at the Cotton Palace, but instead had one ambition to make it a bigger and better day by bringing a larger delegation each year. "Both faculty and student body have become infatuated with the plan of coming to Waco, and so intent is their desire to make the trip here each year that the preliminary convocation of the faculty held to decide on the matter, after the invitation has been extended to us each year, has grown to be quite a perfunctory affair, for the decision to come is always unanimous and generally known in advance. We look forward to our trip here with great pleasure," he said.

Addressing the city of Waco as a whole President Bizzell said "close ties bound it to the A. & M. College. The large number of excellent students we have from here," he said, "elevates our respect for the citizenship of Waco. We appreciate the Waco boys more than we can express."

Judge Sleeper was called on for a short talk and he told of his early school days at the A. & M. College. He attended the first session of the college after it was established in January, 1877. In eloquent language he traced the growth of the college from a "wilderness to a stage where it has taken its place not only as one of the greatest institutions in this state but in the United States." Judge Sleeper said he was proud of the distinction of having received instruction at the A. & M. College.

Major Ike S. Ashburn, commandant of the college expressed his and the college's appreciation of the co-operation and support extended by the Cotton Palace officials and the Waco people.

About 100 A. & M. College officials and their wives attended the luncheon which was tendered them by the Cotton Palace Management.

Others present included: Major L. R. Dougherty, professor of military science and tactics, Major W. H. H. Morris, Captain C. D. Horne, Captain F. J. DeRohan, Captain W. T. over the state of Texas for the purpose of viewing the A. & M. cadet corps and incidentally the Cotton Palace.

The review was pronounced magnificent by everyone who saw it and the best that the corps has engaged in by those who had viewed it in previous years. It brought cheer to the heart of President Bizzell and the ever evident pride that he has for the corps welled from him in warm and earnest acknowledgments as he listened to the words of praise voiced by the Cotton Palace officials, Waco officials and other prominent Texans who stood with him in the reviewing stand on Austin street in front of the Raleigh Hotel, as the khaki columns swept by.

Major L. R. Dougherty gave out a statement yesterday in which he said, "the Military Department expresses its greatest appreciation to the cadet corps for the exceptionally efficient appearance of the corps."

"From the hour of departure to the hour of return, the corps showed its soldierly appearance and gentlemanly bearing themselves to be true sons of Texas A. & M."

"Never before have we seen a better exhibition than that given by the Bais, Lieutenant R. W. Wilson and Lieutenant L. A. Kurtz; C. E. Friley, registrar; J. C. Nagle, dean of engineering; Miss Juliette Castles, duchess from A. & M.; Miss Lila Wickes, duchess from Bryan."

Mrs. Bizzell and Miss Elaine Bizzell accompanied President Bizzell. The day is a bright page in the history of A. & M., it was the most successful day of the Texas Cotton Palace, and it will be long remembered by the 10,000 Waco people and 100,000 others who came from all corps before and after the game, and the military department wishes to congratulate each member of the corps for his individual efficiency.

"We are mighty proud of you."

Major Ike S. Ashburn, commandant, was highly pleased with the success of the day and joyous over the showing that the corps made in review, in the drill, on the football field and on the streets of Waco.

Venerable mothers of A. & M. sons excited to admiration by the impressive sight of the marching boys were on the grounds when arms were stacked and did not restrain themselves from grasping the hands of the first cadets they met and telling them of the greatest honor of their lives in being the mother of an A. & M. boy.

Calisthenics Drill. There is no doubt that outside of the Ross Volunteer drill given every year at commencement time at the college that the calisthenics drill given by the corps under direction of Major W. H. H. Morris on the football field just preceding the game was the most beautiful exhibition ever made by the cadets. The grandstands could not be restrained from almost continuous applause and the Baylor rooters were silenced with a reverential wonder.

That famous "T" formed by the corps between halves and the new feature of the A. & M. C. formed by a number of cadets in undershirt remaining in the grandstand while the others marched on the field only enforced the admiration of the spectators to an ineffable degree.

The band was the indispensable part of the whole wonderful show.

Football Game

The score of 24 to 0 is merely the result of the game. It tells nothing of the work of the Aggie football team which was praiseworthy in every respect. The real story of the game is concerned with the individual exhibitions and they are hard to describe.

Higginbotham demonstrated his real worth on the gridiron, he plunged the line for big gains and he punned for safety many times. He was hailed by many as easily the star of the game. Mahan maintained his record of a football wonder, as he never plunged without securing gains even though he went up against several opponents. Sport writers for several Texas papers who were on the field conceded Drake a place on the all-star team of the southwest.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL OPENED TODAY

On account of Armistice Day parade at the A. & M. College, attracting all Bryan there tomorrow to enjoy its patriotic program, the Red Cross roll call committees, under the direction of the county chairman, Mrs. Frank L. Webb, an dthe city chairman, Miss Della Lawrence, were out today, doing a little advance work. The committees were accorded hearty and cordial response from the people everywhere, and were greatly encouraged in their efforts to put Brazos county over the top again this year for the American Red Cross. Memberships have fairly flooded the roll call headquarters, and every man, woman and child is enrolling again for the Red Cross. The business men of Bryan, with their usual generous response, have not only joined the organization, and wear a 1921 button, but have also made cash contributions to the local chapter fund, to make possible the continuation of this noble work in Brazos county.

A list of those showing their loyalty to the Red Cross by making special cash donations will be published when the list is complete. All soliciting committees will continue their work through the Roll Call dates, Nov. 11th to 25th inclusive.

They say that Chairman Will H. All right, Will, you had better remember there is a hereafter and we will meet you in Philippi.

Stops Corn Pain Instantly and Removes Them Completely.

Whether your "pet" is on top or between the toes, no matter how big or how small or how "tender" three drops of "Gets-It" will lift you right out of your misery.

The Only Way to Cure a Corn is to Remove It with "Gets-It"

You will laugh to see how quickly your corn lets go its grip, how it curls right up and dies so you can lift it off with your fingers. It's folly and nonsense to pare and trim a corn trying to ease its pain when "Gets-It" will easily rid you of it entirely.
